Cures For Depression

Among the thousand and one articles, speeches and interviews to which we have been subjected, the subject of depression, the gold and the silver, and financial depression, there has not appeared one courageous individual who preaches the rather unpopular doctrine that continued depression might be a good thing for the country.

The man advancing this opinion is George Richardson, newly-elected president of the National (United States) Association of Purchasing Agents, which organization, it is stated, represents the material buying power of the big retailers in the south. Mr. Richardson takes a sharp rap at the professional optimists and the northern specialist in a special message to the members of his organization in the course of a recent speech.

"We are now in the second year of a corrective period, which in the judgment of many of us is a wholesome and much needed reminder that there are basic economic, as well as moral, laws which do not change with the seasons, and are not affected by mob psychology, and when flagrant disregard for these laws attains the proportions witnessed prior to the close of 1928, the measure of retribution which is meted out to us in its proportion to the extent of their breach." Thus follows his declaration that "it might be very beneficial in establishing a sound foundation for general recovery to have this period of fast and abstinence continue for awhile. There is no substitute for intelligence, hard work and close application to business."

Mr. Richardson, in this optimistic terms of his speech, is not so far off, finding that "business men need to have it borne in on them that they cannot get out and hold themselves free of effect of the recommendations made to have this period of fast and abstinence continue for awhile. There is no substitute for intelligence, hard work and close application to business."

Contrasted with this statement of hard work and close application to business, which latter means less spending in the view expressed by a writer in a well known Canadian financial paper. He says that it is not stated that the addition of the present depression in hard work, economy and thrift. This has a nice sound, but, unfortunately, the people who advance it do not think of the depression which is the result of their own actions. It is not hard work and economy and thrift which are the cause of the depression, but the depression is the result of their own actions. It is not hard work and economy and thrift which are the cause of the depression, but the depression is the result of their own actions.

Hard work means producing and putting on sale a large quantity of commodities as we did in 1928. Economy and thrift means spending as little as we can of our annual income. If we do this, we will have a surplus of money which we could live on three billion dollars and save one billion of the four billion surplus in 1928. But, if we do this, we will have a surplus of money which we could live on three billion dollars and save one billion of the four billion surplus in 1928. But, if we do this, we will have a surplus of money which we could live on three billion dollars and save one billion of the four billion surplus in 1928.

The results, and prior to the close of 1928 it became widespread, that thousands of people to die of hunger and cold in the streets of the world. It is not hard work and economy and thrift which are the cause of the depression, but the depression is the result of their own actions. It is not hard work and economy and thrift which are the cause of the depression, but the depression is the result of their own actions.

There is a happy medium between the extremes of spending one hundred cents of every dollar earned, even going into debt and buying every possible toy, and miserly living in fear of the future and hoarding every possible penny. A happy medium is to be found in (1) living within one's income; (2) small but regular savings, and these must be made before the winter; (3) to order one's expenses to be within one's income; (4) to order one's expenses to be within one's income; (5) to order one's expenses to be within one's income.

To illustrate, industry (and we include agriculture) produces. It pays for raw materials, wages, transportation, distribution, etc. The wages are paid to the workers, and the materials are paid to the suppliers. The wages are paid to the workers, and the materials are paid to the suppliers. The wages are paid to the workers, and the materials are paid to the suppliers. The wages are paid to the workers, and the materials are paid to the suppliers.

The depression, then, is a result of the fact that the wages are not paid to the workers, and the materials are not paid to the suppliers. The wages are not paid to the workers, and the materials are not paid to the suppliers. The wages are not paid to the workers, and the materials are not paid to the suppliers. The wages are not paid to the workers, and the materials are not paid to the suppliers.

Cheap Power For Winnipeg

Additional 10,000 Horse-Power Of

Electric Energy Available
With the official opening in September of the new hydro-electric plant at Slave Falls, on the Winnipeg River, an additional 10,000 horse-power of electric energy will be available for the Winnipeg municipal power system. The city already has a plant in operation at Point du Bois, also on the Winnipeg River, which generates 120,000 horse-power. Together, the two municipal power plants will supply a great part of the city's electricity, but the city is still having its power requirements taken care of by additional installations on the same stream—the Great Falls plant of the Manitoba Power Company with 168,000 horse-power, and the new plant, recently opened, of the North Western Power Company at Genes Raters Falls where 230,000 horse-power will eventually be developed.

Construction of the new plant at Slave Falls began in 1929. It is designed to generate 12,000 horse-power or a total of 90,000 horse-power. The power will be carried to Winnipeg over a transmission line 50 miles in length.

The events in connection with the opening of the two plants are reminiscent of the birth of hydro-electricity in this country. The first water-power from the Winnipeg River just a quarter of a century ago. In 1904, the Manitoba Electric Railway Company built the Flaxman plant and transmitted the power to Winnipeg. It was a notable achievement of the period. The Flaxman plant, which is now a relic of the past, is still in operation, but the power is used for the city's power plant. The Flaxman plant is now a relic of the past, is still in operation, but the power is used for the city's power plant.

Hydro-electric power is sold by the Manitoba Electric Railway Company at a cent per kilowatt hour, or at a rate as cheap as any similar product is sold anywhere in the world.

Should the announcement be made that a positive cure had been discovered for that dreaded scourge tuberculosis, and should the cure be so simple and so easily obtained, it would be a great relief to the hands of the writer a most remarkable book entitled "Tuberculosis: The Treatment of Tuberculosis by the Use of Unkaloob." The author of this book is a well-known health officer and the publisher is Dr. J. H. ARE WILD FOWL TO BE SAVED

Governmental authorities and game conservation officials in Canada and the United States are so seriously concerned by the threatened extinction of the wild duck and wild goose that vigorous and effective conservation measures must be anticipated. Alberta has taken a very important lead in this respect by appointing the duck season, by one month, and by reducing the day and season bag limits. As the action was taken following a conference at Edmonton at which were present Col.
Cunningham, game commissioner of Manitoba, and A. E. Ester, game commissioner of Saskatchewan, and the other prairie provinces will follow Alberta's example.

This however, will not be sufficient. The most important remedy lies in action that can be taken in the United States for the reason that 90 per cent of the wild ducks lost are shot in the two countries are killed across the line, as against 10 per cent in Canada. Yet, these ducks are raised in Canada. This therefore, means that if adequate conservation is to be secured the main action must come from the United States.

Alberta, one of the great breeding provinces, has made a generous and useful contribution. With the other prairie provinces following suit, the following will be in the United States as to whether practical conservation will be secured with the wild duck, and with it the wild goose.

The situation in Western Canada has been thoroughly examined by Dr. W. D. Bell, of the Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington, cooperating with Mr. J. Munro, chief federal migratory bird officer for the western provinces, and with Mr. Frank Parker, of Carleton place, of the Alberta Fish and Game Association. They have found that the duck loss in western Canada, including the more northern regions approximate the appalling total of 90 per cent of the supply of a few years ago. Dr. Bell has gone so far as to declare that the rate of the carrier species will be the fate of the wild duck unless conservation measures are taken.

Others, a similar effort to be made for action, but Ottawa cannot act effectively without the co-operation of the conservation. The Canadian government may be urged to the individual support of the Fish and Game associations in every province in the Dominion in any effort to make the situation worse the uncertainty of the wild water fowl. The Calgary Herald.
